The Courier very much regrets to hear that Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Glaser of Brunswick are confined to their beds with typhoid fever. Several very "onery" newspapers are being supported in this county that are really not worth the price of the white paper upon which they are printed, still they are printed still they rob papers of real merit of patronage. The people are to blame for this state of affairs, and it is high time, in simple justice to themselves, that they should take only such papers as will give them the best returns for their money.

It is true that others imitate the methods employed in advertising Beggs' German Salve, others claim to heal and cure disease because Beggs' German Salve, the one true ointment, has been so wonderfully successful. But in thousands and thousands of cases, as shown by grateful testimonials, Beggs' German Salve actually and permanently cures when other medicines fail to do any good whatever. Sneed Drug Company.

You can tell the successful farmer by looking at his wife's fruit cans in the closet. You can tell the dry goods box statesman by the patches on his pants. You can tell the poisonous serpent by the bluntness of its tail. You can tell a slouchy woman by her shoes and her hair. But the easiest of all, you can pick out the enterprising merchants of a town by looking at the home newspaper. This is not a divine revelation, but it is business and the gospel truth.

Mattie, the little daughter of Mrs. Mollie Landrum, had a narrow escape from death, Saturday afternoon, says the Salisbury Press-Spectator. While playing with some children she fell backwards down a steep staircase and when picked up the folks thought she was dead. Dr. Welch was called and after an examination he found that no bones were broken and that she had sustained no serious injuries, though he says it was a remarkable escape.

The Columbia Statesman says that B. W. Stephens, a farmer who lives a few miles north of Columbia, thinks the reason some farmers raise wheat with small grains or berries, is that they grow the same wheat on the same ground year after year, raising their own seed each year. It will "run out," he says, just like potatoes or anything else. "Wheat in my neighborhood," said Mr. Stephens, "was generally poor, though Mr. Holton had one field that made a good yield for any year. My wheat weighed 52 pounds to the bushel, which is light."

Hog Cholera Remedy.

DEAR COURIER:—I see by the papers that hog cholera prevails in Charlton county. I wish to make a statement for the benefit of hog-raisers in old Charlton. In December, 1896, I was in company with several gentlemen on a hunt in Troupe county, Georgia, among whom was Dr. J. B. Crenshaw, a very prominent dentist of Atlanta. He is a native of Alabama, a finely-informed gentleman, and stands high in Atlanta as a man, a Christian and in his profession. He and his brother own a large farm in Alabama on which they raise quite a number of hogs. By some means Dr. Crenshaw learned something of the power of electrozone in destroying microbes. His brother wrote him that hog cholera was prevailing in that region, and that their own hogs were dying with the fatal disease. Dr. Crenshaw ordered a full supply of electrozone to be sent to his brother with instructions to try it on one of the victims of the cholera. He declared, with a heavy emphasis, that not a hog died that ever was supplied with the new remedy. He also stated that one hog was so far gone with the cholera late in the afternoon that he was put into the wagon and taken to the dead lot, but before going he was well drenched and saturated with electrozone, and the next morning he came up on schedule time for his breakfast, and ate a good, heavy one, and fully and speedily recovered and made a large and fat hog by the time the knife came around for victims of his persuasion.

The hogs in the neighborhood continued to die by the score, but not one that ever swallowed a dose of electrozone. Now I know nothing of the matter except I do know that I heard the above statements from a very truthful and reliable Baptist deacon, and I have no right to call in question his word. I wrote to him and secured the name of the remedy after I heard that Missouri sometimes has heavy losses by this disease.

The remedy is pretty costly. He paid about $13 or $14 for enough to save 40 hogs. It can be had in drug stores; if not in the small ones it can be found in the large cities, and on the large bottles may be found all the directions necessary in its use and application. I send you this and ask you to print it for the benefit of my old friends in Charlton county, and if they ever try it and reap advantages from it all that I will charge them for it is a little richer gravy and an extra slice of ham when I pass among them.

HARVEY HATCHER.

The Brunswick helped itself to another batch of the Courier's county court proceedings last week, but again failed to give this paper credit. If the Brunswick's gall-bag were to burst there would be a regular Johnstown flood in Brunswick. We don't object to the Brunswick's stealing what brains we use in compiling the court proceedings, but we do enter our solemn protest against having the fruits of our hard work stolen without being treated with that professional courtesy which we have a right to expect.

The Brunswick says that the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Meyers living five miles southeast of town died, Monday, and was buried in the Catholic cemetery north of town, Tuesday. The child at the time of its death was only two months old, and had been sick for nearly a month. Thirteen months ago the death of Mr. and Mrs. Meyers' first born occurred, it being about seven months of age. The loss of their children to them is very sad, and they have the sympathy of the people wherever their bereavement is known.

The Brown house at Brunswick was damaged to the extent of $150 by fire between three and four o'clock last Friday morning, and would have been entirely consumed had it not been for the quick and efficient work done by the fire department. As it was, the laundry building was burned down, one or two doors of the hotel were destroyed and the roof was badly damaged for a distance of about 30 feet in length. The fire was first discovered by a party of picnics who had been out in the country, but it is not known how the fire originated, as it started in the laundry and there had been no fire in that building during the day or night previous.

Remarkable Rescue.
Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her that she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from the first dose. She continued its use, and after taking six bottles found herself sound and well; now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at W. C. Gaston's drug store. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.
